situated,

Plaintiff,

v.

ROBINHOOD FINANCIAL LLC, a
Delaware limited liability company,

Defendant.

NO. 2:19-CV-0390-TOR

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR CLASS
CERTIFICATION

BEFORE THE COURT is Plaintiff's Motion for Class Certification (ECF No. 58). This matter was submitted for consideration with telephonic oral argument on January 21, 2021. Kirk D. Miller appeared on behalf of Plaintiff. Kenneth E. Payson and Eric Franz appeared on behalf of Defendant. The Court has reviewed the record and files herein, and is fully informed. For the reasons discussed below, Plaintiff's Motion for Class Certification (ECF No. 58) is GRANTED.

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR CLASS

BACKGROUND

A. Factual Background

This case concerns the “Refer a Friend” (“RAF”) marketing feature from Defendant’s online investment brokerage application, which Plaintiff alleges violates the Washington Consumer Protection Act (“CPA”) by way of the Washington Commercial Electronic Mail Act (“CEMA”). The material facts are largely undisputed for the purpose of this motion, and the Court must accept as true the substantive allegations of the class claim. See Blackie v. Barrack, 524 F.2d 891, 901 n.7 (9th Cir. 1975).

Defendant is an online investment brokerage service that enables customers to invest commission-free in stocks, exchange-traded funds, and options. ECF No. 58 at 10; ECF No. 65 at 10. Defendant created a referral program, RAF, where customers can refer someone to sign up for Defendant’s services whereby both the customer and referee receive one share of free stock after the referee signs up. ECF No. 65 at 10. Defendant provides various methods to customers to send a referral, including via electronic text message. ECF No. 65 at 11-12.¹ Essentially, when a customer opts to send a referral, Defendant creates an automated message

1 with a referral hyperlink to sign up that a customer may edit before sending. ECF
2 No. 65 at 10-13.

3 In July 2019, Plaintiff, a Washington resident, received an unsolicited text 4 message from the RAF program, inviting Plaintiff to sign up for Defendant's 5 services via a hyperlink and stating "Your free stock is waiting for you! Join 6 Robinhood and we'll both get a stock like Apple, Ford, or Facebook for free. Sign 7 up with my link." ECF No. 58 at 10-11. The text message did not include an "opt-8 out" or "stop" option to preclude further receipts of similar text messages. ECF 9 No. 58 at 11-12.

10 B. Procedural Background

11 Plaintiff initially filed a putative class action complaint against Defendants 12 Robinhood Financial LLC and Robinhood Markets Inc. in Spokane County 13 Superior Court. ECF No. 1-1 at 5-16. Defendants removed the action to federal 14 court on the basis of class action diversity jurisdiction under the Class Action 15 Fairness Act ("CAFA"). ECF No. 1 at 1-6.

16 Following removal, Plaintiff filed an Amended Complaint. ECF No. 9.
17 Defendants then filed a Motion to Dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction over 18 Defendant Robinhood Markets and a Motion to Dismiss for failure to adequately 19 allege a CEMA violation. ECF Nos. 11-12. The Court granted Defendants' 20 Motions to Dismiss without prejudice and granted Plaintiff leave to amend. ECF

No. 18. In the Order, the Court concluded that the amount-in-controversy was not sufficient to support diversity jurisdiction. Id. Upon reviewing the parties' cross motions for reconsideration (ECF Nos. 19, 22), the Court granted the parties leave to submit evidence establishing the amount-in-controversy. ECF No. 29. On June 3, 2020, the Court found Defendant Robinhood Financial LLC substantiated that the amount-in-controversy exceeds $5 million by potentially involving over 1,000 RAF recipients with Washington addresses. ECF Nos. 34-35.

On November 23, 2020, Plaintiff filed the present Motion to Certify Class. ECF No. 58. Plaintiff proposes the following class definition:

All persons, as that term is defined in RCW 19.190.010(11) and RCW 19.86.010(a); who are Washington residents; to whom the Defendant initiated or assisted in the transmission of one or more commercial electronic text messages; to a cellular phone or pager service that is equipped with short message capability or any similar capability allowing the transmission of text messages; without obtaining the recipients' clear and affirmative consent to receive such messages in advance; within the previous four (4) years; through the date that the class is certified.

The parties filed their respective response and reply (ECF Nos. 65, 68) before the matter was heard with oral argument.

DISCUSSION

A. Class Certification Standard

Certification of a class action lawsuit is governed by Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See Marlo v. UPS, Inc., 639 F.3d 942, 947 (9th Cir.

2011) (“Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 23 governs the class-certification issue even if the underlying claim arises under state law.”). Pursuant to Rule 23(a), the party seeking class certification must demonstrate that “(1) the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable; (2) there are questions of law or fact common to the class; (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class; and (4) the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a).

Provided the proposed class satisfies the above criteria, courts must further determine whether certification is appropriate under Rule 23(b). Where a party seeks certification of a so-called “damages class” under Rule 23(b)(3), as here, he or she must demonstrate that (1) “questions of law or fact common to class members predominate over any questions affecting only individual members;” and (2) “a class action is superior to other available methods for fairly and efficiently adjudicating the controversy.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3). As the party moving for certification, the plaintiff bears the burden of establishing that the foregoing requirements have been satisfied. Mazza v. Am. Honda Motor Co., Inc., 666 F.3d 581, 588 (9th Cir. 2012).

A court presented with a class certification motion must perform a “rigorous analysis” to determine whether each of these prerequisites has been satisfied. Gen.

1 Tel. Co. v. Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 161 (1982). “Frequently that ‘rigorous analysis’ 2 will entail some overlap with the merits of the plaintiff’s underlying claim.” Wal- 3 Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 351 (2011); see also Ellis v. Costco
4 Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970, 981 (9th Cir. 2011) (emphasizing that a district 5 court “must” consider the merits of a plaintiff’s claim to the extent that they 6 overlap with the prerequisites for class certification under Rule 23(a)). That is, 7 “[a] party seeking class certification must affirmatively demonstrate his 8 compliance with the Rule—that is, he must be prepared to prove that there are in 9 fact sufficiently numerous parties, common questions of law or fact, etc.” Wal- 10 Mart, 564 U.S. at 350. The ultimate decision to certify a class is within the Court’s 11 discretion. Vinole v. Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 571 F.3d 935, 944 (9th Cir.
12 2009).

13 Here, Plaintiff moved to certify a class pursuing damages under 14 Washington’s CEMA by way of Washington’s CPA.

15 B. Rule 23(a) Requirements

16 1. Numerosity

17 Rule 23(a)(1) provides that a proposed class must be “so numerous that 18 joinder of all members is impracticable.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(1). “Whether 19 joinder would be impracticable depends on the facts and circumstances of each 20 case and does not, as a matter of law, require any specific minimum number of

1 class members.” Smith v. Univ. of Wash. Law Sch., 2 F. Supp. 2d 1324, 1340 2 (W.D. Wash. 1998) (citation omitted). “Generally, 40 or more members will 3 satisfy the numerosity requirement.” Garrison v. Asotin Cty., 251 F.R.D. 566, 569 4 (E.D. Wash. 2008) (citing Consol. Rail Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 47 F.3d 473, 5 483 (2d Cir. 1995)). Conversely, the Supreme Court has indicated that a class of 6 15 “would be too small to meet the numerosity requirement.” Gen. Tel. Co. of the 7 Nw., Inc. v. EEOC, 446 U.S. 318, 330 (1980). “Where the exact size of the class is 8 unknown but general knowledge and common sense indicate that it is large, the 9 numerosity requirement is satisfied.” Orantes-Hernandez v. Smith, 541 F. Supp.
10 351, 370 (C.D. Cal. 1982).

11 To establish numerosity, Plaintiff relies on Defendant’s sworn affidavit 12 substantiating that the amount in controversy exceeds $5 million, potentially 13 involving over 1,100 class members. ECF No. 58 at 18. Defendant argues that the 14 affidavit’s estimate does not satisfy Plaintiff’s burden to show that there is a 15 proposed class in fact sufficiently numerous and that Plaintiff has failed to identify 16 a single additional putative class member. ECF No. 65 at 29-30. However, 17 Defendant’s large estimate based on data regarding RAF recipients with 18 Washington addresses creates the common-sense inference that the class is 19 sufficiently numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. See

1 Defendant's Senior Data Scientist's sworn statement as to a reasonable estimate, 2 ECF No. 34 at 3-4. Therefore, the numerosity requirement has been established.

3 2. Commonality

4 Rule 23(a)(2) requires that "there are questions of law or fact common to the 5 class." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2). For purposes of this rule, "[c]ommonality exists 6 where class members' situations share a common issue of law or fact, and are 7 sufficiently parallel to insure a vigorous and full presentation of all claims for 8 relief." Wolin v. Jaguar Land Rover N. Am., LLC, 617 F.3d 1168, 1172 (9th Cir.
9 2010) (internal quotation and citation omitted). At its core, the commonality 10 requirement is designed to ensure that class-wide adjudication will "generate 11 common answers apt to drive the resolution of the litigation." Wal-Mart, 564 U.S.
12 at 350 (internal quotation and citation omitted).

13 "This does not, however, mean that every question of law or fact must be 14 common to the class; all that Rule 23(a)(2) requires is a single significant question 15 of law or fact." Abdullah v. U.S. Sec. Assoc., Inc., 731 F.3d 952, 957 (9th Cir.
16 2013) (quotation omitted). "If a common question will drive the resolution, even if 17 there are important questions affecting only individual members, then the class is 18 'sufficiently cohesive to warrant adjudication by representation.'" Jabbari v.
19 Farmer, 965 F.3d 1001, 1005 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting Amchem Prods., Inc. v.

1 Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 623-24 (1997)). Individual defenses do not necessarily 2 render a case unsuitable for class certification. Ellis, 657 F.3d at 984.

3 To establish commonality, Plaintiff contends that “the common primary 4 question presented by the putative class is whether Defendant’s commercial text 5 messages sent through its RAF marketing program violated the CPA vis à vis its 6 violation of CEMA.” ECF No. 58 at 20. Defendant argues the “recitation of 7 Plaintiff’s legal claim in general terms cannot satisfy commonality.” ECF No. 65 8 at 20. Defendant further posits that, “Plaintiff does not explain how, for example, 9 the question of whether individual text message recipients consented could have a 10 ‘single’ answer for all putative class members.” ECF No. 65 at 21. Plaintiff raises 11 a single common question of law under CEMA among Washington text message 12 referees. Defendant’s concern about individualized inquiries regarding common 13 defenses such as consent do not defeat certification, Ellis, 657 F.3d at 984, and are 14 more appropriately addressed on the merits at trial, through summary judgment or 15 through decertification following discovery. Therefore, the commonality 16 requirement has been established.

17 3. Typicality

18 Rule 23(a)(3) requires that “the claims or defenses of the representative 19 parties [be] typical of the claims or defenses of the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3).
20 This requirement serves to ensure that “the interest of the named representative

1 aligns with the interests of the class.” Wolin, 617 F.3d at 1175. Factors relevant to 2 the typicality inquiry include “whether other members have the same or similar 3 injury, whether the action is based on conduct which is not unique to the named 4 plaintiffs, and whether other class members have been injured by the same course 5 of conduct.” Ellis, 657 F.3d at 984. Stated differently, “[t]ypicality refers to the 6 nature of the claim or defense of the class representative, and not to the specific 7 facts from which it arose or the relief sought.” Id.; see also Stearns v. Ticketmaster 8 Corp., 655 F.3d 1013, 1019 (9th Cir. 2011), abrogated on other grounds by 9 Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 569 U.S. 27 (2013) (“The typicality requirement looks 10 to whether the claims of the class representatives are typical of those of the class, 11 and is satisfied when each class member’s claim arises from the same course of 12 events, and each class member makes similar legal arguments to prove the 13 defendant’s liability.”) (brackets omitted).

14 To establish typicality, Plaintiff asserts that all putative class members have 15 suffered the same injury of receiving at least one unsolicited commercial text 16 message from Defendant. ECF No. 58 at 22. Defendant argues that “Plaintiff fails 17 to even describe, let alone provide evidence of, his factual circumstances in 18 comparison with those of other putative class members.” ECF No. 65 at 28.
19 However, Plaintiff has set forth the factual circumstances that demonstrates the 20 claims and defenses are typical of the class: the injury across class members is the 1 receipt of an unsolicited commercial text message, the course of conduct by 2 Defendant is the alleged transmission or aid of transmission of a commercial 3 electronic text message, and legal arguments are anticipated to be whether the text 4 messages were commercial or consented to.

5 Defendant's concern with Plaintiff's present failure and ability to identify 6 other class members is unpersuasive. First, as discussed supra, Defendant's own 7 estimate demonstrates that there is a quantifiable number of individuals with 8 typical circumstances; Defendant substantiated that there are individuals with 9 Washington addresses who received a referral to Defendant's services from a text 10 message. ECF No. 32. Second, the Ninth Circuit does not require a plaintiff to 11 demonstrate an administratively feasible way to identify class members to qualify 12 for certification. Briseno v. ConAgra Foods, Inc., 844 F.3d 1121, 1133 (9th Cir.
13 2017). Defendant's concerns are more appropriately addressed in a motion on the 14 merits through summary judgment or through decertification following discovery.
15 Therefore, the typicality requirement has been established.

16 4. Adequacy of Representation

17 The final prerequisite for class certification under Rule 23(a)(4) is that "the 18 representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class."
19 Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(4). This requirement applies to both the named class 20 representatives and to their counsel. "To determine whether named plaintiffs will

1 adequately represent a class, courts must resolve two questions: (1) do the named 2 plaintiffs and their counsel have any conflicts of interest with other class members 3 and (2) will the named plaintiffs and their counsel prosecute the action vigorously 4 on behalf of the class?” Ellis, 657 F.3d at 985 (internal quotations omitted).

5 To establish adequacy of representation of class representative, Plaintiff 6 contends that he is committed to vigorously litigating this matter, has demonstrated 7 his commitment to serve as class representative by participating in counsel’s 8 investigations of his claims, reviewed and approved the complaints, and paid a 9 judgment for attorney fees in this matter for voluntary dismissal of a former 10 Defendant. ECF No. 58 at 23-24. Moreover, Plaintiff asserts that there is no 11 indication at this early stage of litigation that he is ill-equipped to serve as class 12 representative for the duration of this case. ECF No. 58 at 24. To establish 13 adequacy of representation of class counsel, Plaintiff contends that counsel has 14 experience with class action lawsuits, has been found adequate counsel in many 15 other class action proceedings, has focused on issues of consumer rights, and has 16 committed and will continue to commit to the prosecution of this matter. ECF No.
17 58 at 25.

18 Defendant objects to the named class representative’s and named counsels’ 19 ability to fairly and adequately represent the class on the basis that “Plaintiff’s 20 counsel failed to take discovery before filing his motion for class certification” and

1 “filed his motion for class certification with almost no citations to evidence, in the 2 process contravening Rule 23’s requirements and this Court’s local rules.” ECF 3 No. 65 at 30. Defendant’s objection is unpersuasive. See Jiminez v. Domino’s
4 Pizza, Inc., 238 F.R.D. 241, 248 (C.D. Cal. 2006) (finding class counsel adequate 5 despite defendants’ arguments that plaintiffs’ counsel submitted false declarations, 6 gave incorrect information about a duty to comply with a subpoena, and 7 frivolously instructed their clients not to answer deposition questions).

8 The Court finds no reason to doubt the competency or commitment of the 9 class representative and class counsel, nor does the Court identify any conflicts at 10 present. Therefore, adequacy of representation has been established.

11 C. Rule 23(b)(3) Requirements

12 1. Predominance

13 For purposes of Rule 23(b)(3), the relevant inquiry is whether common 14 questions predominate over individualized questions. See Wolin, 617 F.3d at 1172 15 (“While Rule 23(a)(2) asks whether there are issues common to the class, Rule 16 23(b)(3) asks whether these common questions predominate.”). Although Rule 17 23(a)(2) and Rule 23(b)(3) both address commonality, “the 23(b)(3) test is ‘far 18 more demanding,’ and asks ‘whether proposed classes are sufficiently cohesive to 19 warrant adjudication by representation.’” Id. (quoting Windsor, 521 U.S. at 623-20 24).

1 Plaintiff asserts a claim under CEMA vis-à-vis the CPA. ECF No. 58 at 27.
2 Under CEMA, a plaintiff must prove that a defendant conducting business in 3 Washington “initiate[d] or assist[ed] in the transmission of an electronic 4 commercial text message to a telephone number assigned to a Washington resident 5 for cellular telephone or pager service that is equipped with short message 6 capability or any similar capability allowing the transmission of text messages.”
7 RCW 19.190.060(1). However, there is no CEMA violation if a recipient provided 8 clear and affirmative consent. RCW 19.190.070(b). A CPA violation is 9 established with an RCW 19.190.060 violation in conjunction with CEMA’s 10 damages provision. Wright v. Lyft, Inc., 189 Wash. 2d 718, 732 (2017) (CEMA 11 damages provision “establishes the injury and causation elements of a CPA claim 12 as a matter of law.”).

13 Plaintiff contends predominance is satisfied where “the overarching 14 common question in this litigation is whether Defendant violated the CPA and 15 CEMA through its RAF program, whereby it either initiate or substantially assisted 16 in the transmission of commercial text messages to new potential customers 17 through its existing subscribers or ‘third party intermediaries’ by encouraging its 18 subscribers to forward through the promise of remuneration in the form of free 19 stock.” ECF No. 58 at 27. Defendant argues that individual questions 20 predominate over any common question “to determine (1) who actually sent and

1 received each text message; (2) whether each recipient was a Washington resident; 2 (3) the content of each text message, including whether each message was 3 ‘commercial’ under CEMA; and (4) which text message recipients provided 4 consent.” ECF No. 65 at 21.

5 Defendant’s concern for individualized inquiries, also addressed supra, do 6 not predominate over the common question and can be dealt with in other ways not 7 fatal to class certification. For example, Defendant’s concern over which text 8 messages were “commercial” is best suited for briefing on the merits; indeed, 9 Plaintiff contends that any editing in promotional narrative would not remove a 10 “commercial” designation under any circumstance. ECF No. 68 at 6-7. Moreover, 11 the identity of class members will answer questions as to receipt of an RAF text 12 message, Washington residency, and consent. Therefore, the predominance 13 requirement is satisfied.

14 2. Superiority

15 In considering whether class adjudication is superior to separate individual 16 actions, a court must determine “whether the objectives of the particular class 17 action procedure will be achieved in the particular case.” Hanlon v. Chrysler 18 Corp., 150 F.3d 1011, 1023 (9th Cir. 1998), overruled on other grounds by Wal- 19 Mart, 564 U.S. at 338. In making this determination, the court must consider, inter 20 alia, (1) the interests of individual class members in pursuing their claims

1 separately; (2) the extent of any existing litigation concerning the same subject-2 matter; (3) the desirability of concentrating the litigation in a particular forum; and 3 (4) the feasibility of managing the case as a class action. Fed. R. Civ. P.
4 23(b)(3)(A)-(D). A court's consideration of these factors must "focus on the 5 efficiency and economy elements of the class action so that cases allowed under 6 subdivision (b)(3) are those that can be adjudicated most profitably on a 7 representative basis." Zinser v. Accufix Research Inst., Inc., 253 F.3d 1180, 1190 8 (9th Cir.), opinion amended on denial of reh'g, 273 F.3d 1266 (9th Cir. 2001) 9 (quotation and citation omitted).

10 First, Plaintiff contends that superiority is satisfied due to the the potentially 11 substantial number of Washington consumers who seek to recover $500 in 12 statutory damages per text, with the possibility of $1,500 per text if the Court 13 awards exemplary damages. ECF No. 58 at 30. Second, Plaintiff is not aware of 14 any other litigation concerning the same subject matter involving Defendant. Id.
15 Third, Plaintiff identified several core legal questions that may be amenable to 16 summary judgment on a class-wide basis. Id. at 30-31. Finally, the damages for 17 class members is straightforward based on statutory damages plus any exemplary 18 damages at the Court's discretion. Id. at 31.

19 Defendant claims that Plaintiff failed to demonstrate that the case would be 20 manageable and asserts that the damages are large enough for individual members

1 to pursue. ECF No. 65 at 31-32. Defendant’s arguments are unpersuasive. Class 2 action will promote efficiency and economy in this matter: class adjudication 3 would serve the interest of individual class members for whom the potential 4 recovery may be small in comparison to the costs of litigation, there is no known 5 litigation concerning the same subject-matter, this is an appropriate forum for 6 Washington consumers, and the case appears to be feasibly managed as a class 7 action. Any future management concerns may be addressed with a “variety of 8 procedural tools” to ease administrative burdens. Briseno, 844 F.3d at 1128.
9 Therefore, the superiority element is satisfied.

10 The Court finds that Plaintiff has satisfied the requirements for class 11 certification.

12 ACCORDINGLY, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

13 1. Plaintiff’s Motion for Class Certification (ECF No. 58) is GRANTED.

14 2. Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3), the Court hereby certifies the 15 following Class in this case:

- 16 a. All persons, as that term is defined in RCW 19.190.010(11) and RCW
17 19.86.010(a); who are Washington residents; to whom the Defendant 18 initiated or assisted in the transmission of one or more commercial 19 electronic text messages; to a cellular phone or pager service that is 20 equipped with short message capability or any similar capability

1 allowing the transmission of text messages; without obtaining the 3 advance; from October 4, 2015 to January 25, 2021.

4 3. Pursuit to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(B), the Court hereby certifies the 9 affirmative consent to receive such messages.

10 4. Excluded from the Class is the Defendant and all officers, members,
